Script for telephone attitude survey

<INTRO> Good —, my name is — and I'm calling from Taylor Nelson Sofres , an independent research company. We have been commissioned by the Scottish Executive to find out about people's views and experiences of parades and marches, and the impact that they have on local communities. The research covers all sorts of marches, including political protests such as anti-war demonstrations, Orange walks or Irish Republican marches, and local gala day parades. Would you mind answering some questions? It should take around 15 minutes. All your responses will be strictly confidential and nothing that could identify you will be passed on to the Scottish Executive.

I am going to read out a list of different types of march or parade. For each one, could you tell me whether you have ever been involved in that kind of march, either as a participant, a spectator or as someone otherwise affected by the march (for example as a passer-by, or because you live or work nearby). We're just interested in marches or parades that took place in Scotland, not in parades you might have seen when you were abroad or in other parts of the UK.

<Q1A1> 1.a.1. First of all, thinking about local gala day parades, carnivals with floats, or student rag weeks and that kind of thing. Have you ever been an active participant in that kind of parade?

There are a number of the different things which the authorities might take into account when deciding whether a march or parade should be allowed to go ahead, or about when and where it can take place. I am going to ask you what you think should be taken into account when making decisions about different kinds of marches...
